I HAVEN'T DONE Much Talking

of late, as I have been away to Baltimore and New York to select my line for the Spring and Summer. I have tried to get the best of values the markets can afford.

The Home Place is the Place to Buy.
 Every dollar you put into circulation among your neighbors benefits you. To be sure it is plenty of plate glass and frills in the big city, but it is the goods you want, prices and quality. I will guarantee to give you just as good values as you can get in the city when you order, and you have to pay express.

I have a nice selection of China and Japan matting, the very latest tile-check pattern representing the best two color combination ever shown in matting colors, green and natural bamboo.
 Standard grade cotton warp Japanese Matting, worth 20c a yard for a shilling; all wool filling cotton chain Ingrain Carpet will wear as long as the highest priced goods made, only 42c a yard; Floor Oil cloth, the best selected patterns and good quality for 22c; Stair Oil Carpet 1 wide, best quality 14c; cheaper grade 12 cents a yard.

Alarm Clocks

with a calendar showing the date of the month, 98c. My line of mercantile gingham and satins are good values and desirable patterns. In order not to crowd my space I have omitted telling you about my line of clothing I have just got in. They are the best made line I have ever had and the prices the lowest good merchandise can offer.

ARBOVALE

Good morning Mr. Editor: I will proceed to give you a few items.

Still snowing, raining, blowing and the sun shows now and then but the roads are drying up and it looks as though that flying machine would be useless.

Benj. M. Arbogast moved a load of household goods down to Marlinton, West Virginia.

Sheila, Deputy Sheriff.

O. G. Arbogast and B. B. Beard made a flying trip to Travellers Rest last Sunday.

Rev. Pullin will preach here next Sunday night at 7 P. M.

We agree with your honorable correspondent at Greenbush, to give us men who will put down the law and not give them license.

Mr. Siple and Mr. Johnson of Collins Station were over on Sunday and took in the singing at this place.

Uriah Heverer returned to his school last Monday at Hightown, Virginia.

We would like to hear where our next Musical Association will be held. Sure it is the best way of all the earth and died.

The sing at Arbovale last Sunday was OK but we would like to see more singing people turn out, and help this good cause.

Prayer meeting every Thursday night at 7 o'clock. Let everybody come forth and help with this good work of the Lord.

Squire making is the order of the day.

To-day (Monday) looks more like spring weather, as the Old Sol is shining with all his glory this morning.

Squire Riley and Robert Brown were over to the city of Cass last Saturday afternoon.

W. J. Veager and lady passed through town last Sunday evening.

Peter Fly Bucket.

STONY BOTTOM.

Good morning Mr. Editor. I guess that if you have been looking for good weather you feel we do this morning—like an April day.

It is snowing at the rate of forty miles an hour, and garden making is a time in the far distant future.

Our town seems to be enjoying quite a spell now.

John Spence is attending court. Uncle Billy is still snoring in a few logs but it is good kidding.

Frank Turner, the very efficient foreman at Camp Turner, came with Frank McLaughlin, Harry Edwards, John Lonsberger, and Lamy Rider to Stony Bottom last Sunday.

Time is Flying

Is n't it time to be thinking of the Shirt Waist you are going to wear during this summer?

I have just received my full line of ladies Shirt Waists. They are great values. You ought to see these gorgeous waists for $1.00. They are made up this season with the bishop cuff and the latest collar.

Only 25cts

Here is a solid Color Chambray Waist 48c

I have bought a special bargain in linen effect with the collar are worth $1.50 each, for 75c. I don't think they will stay long at fifty cents on the dollar.

I have already found my mistake that I have bought too many. They are made by the most reliable manufacturer in New York and are going to sell a part of my line at cost. You will appreciate the value.

When it comes to Clothing

I am strictly in the line this season. I have bought the best clothing in the city of Baltimore, my under what I cost the manufacturer to produce. I am selling them for less than the makers wholesale price. I have bought a special bargain in linen effect with the collar are worth $1.50 each, for 75c. W. M. Dean, of Lobelia has taken the agency for the genuine High Arm Singer Sewing Machine, especially adopted to family sewing. And more generally used throughout the world than all other machines combined. The self threading shuttle is the perfection of simplicity; its movement is so easy that even a child can use it. It is no fault to see one of these great blessings for the housekeeper.

We have taken charge of the Lobelia mill at Lobelia, and earnestly solicit your patronage. We will endeavor to please and accommodate our customers in every way we possibly can. We always keep on hand a supply of Flour, Meal, Bran, Shorts, and Ground Chops. Timothy and Clover Seed, Seed Oats, Salt, Nails, etc. We will take in exchange for goods Bacon, Potatoes, Apples, Beans, Dried Fruits, Hides, Tallow, Wool, etc.

HODGES and SON,
Lobelia, W. Va.

All persons indebted to the firm of R. L. Malcomb and Co. are notified to settle with the undersigned Receiver of said firm and save costs. JOHN E. BARLOW

In passing through Washington at night, as we did last week, the great white Capitol building is seen from the train dimly, but shining in its misty outline in the darkness by reason of its size and whiteness. It is impressive to see it so and reflect that it is the very hearts centre of the greatest nation and people that has ever existed. The building in its massive simplicity is typical of American character, we have heard men say.

At Washington a band of Indians from the Territory got on board to start home, after seeing the Capital. They were full blooded, apparently, and wild, with long hair. Several had the "scalp lock," carefully separated on top of the head at the back. An Indian wears a scalp lock as a sort of dare to anybody to come and take it, or lose his own. This pushing a point of honor too far has pretty nearly exterminated the Indian.

In fixing his scalp lock the Indian combs out a round patch of hair two inches in diameter and plaits it in a short braid. The rest of his hair hangs in two long plaits in front of either shoulder, and the whole is kept heavy with grease. We would like to have talked with a real Indian, but the old buck opposite had an expression of face about as amiable as a rattlesnake and was very reticent, and an attempt at conversation was unsuccessful.

As the train approached Orange Courthouse, a young fellow across the aisle produced a bottle of corn liquor and politely offered me a drink. I replied in polite western style, "No, thanks, pardner." He said, "You exsqueeze, do you?" I "exsqueezed," and the incident was closed.

In the seat behind was awoman with a fifteen months old baby. They had been traveling for two weeks from Switzerland, through France and England, to Colfeville Vv. Va. She and her husband had traveled with Barnum and Bailey's show for several years, and she had come to this country in advance of the show.. The man is a musician and yet with the show, in Europe. The baby was pretty bright and friendly, just learning to talk in three or four languages. It really sounded like it: We caught such words as "ah wah" (an vowel), etc. The way she said them, gave a sea-sick feeling, a faint, all over the body, sufficient in the flying trapeze, or the slack wire.

As the train began to climb the eastern side of the Alleghenies the snow was coming down and several inches had already fallen. Lower down there was no snow.

On the Greenbrier Division we met a Mr Shockey, who was coming to Pocahontas, to remove the body of his son to Barbour County. The boy was drowned while working as a lumberman on Williams River. Mr Shockey traveled nearly 500 miles by rail to reach a point in Pocahontas only 80 miles distant in the most direct route from his home. The roads, and the way are, were well impassable.

That certain persons have a peculiar influence over others is not and cannot be denied. They always have something they will exchange for nothing and you do not count the cost until afterward when there is more time. We think we are prepared to speak because we have been skinned by every other man that ever came down the pike. But that there are others is proven by the number of gold bricks sold daily, and the number of these velvet cutters must be legion. The rappers are few though compared to the great harvest of us poor devils who are not hide bound and skin

Hypnotism plays a big part in horse trading, and is the instrument with which eye teeth are cut. We saw a horse trade the other day which we have to write up or bust: It brought to mind several of my own early ventures. A young man had a fairly good horse for which he received an offer to trade for an inferior animal.

In the Historical Sketch of the Hot Springs, written by F. T. McAllister, are the following references to General Andrew Lewis, one of the first owners of this world renowned springs. Thomas Lewis and Lieut. Bullitt associated with him. He was one of the united sons of John Lewis, a promoter of the pioneer settlements in the great Virginia Valley. His mother was Margaret, the daughter of the Laird of Loch Llyn.

A splendid statue, beneath the wings of a griffin in the Capital Square at Richmond commemorates General Andrew Lewis, a Virginia statesman and military leader who was killed in the Braddock campaign of 1755, the Forbes expedition of 1758, and as commander of the Virginia troops at the battle of Point Pleasant, 1774. Many of the troops in that battle were led by Colonel Charles Lewis of the Potomac River, a brother of Andrew Lewis. The Revolt ranks the Battle of Point Pleasant as the first of the Revolutionary War, and says but for the success of that battle the colonies at the close of the Revolution would have found their territory confined to the narrow limit between the Atlantic and the Alleghenies.

The first person that seems to have appreciated the value of the curative properties of the Hot Springs was Lieut. Thomas Bull. This officer was at one time in command of the fort on Jackson River, five miles from the War Springs. This fort was built prior to 1755, for in this year it was inspected by George Washington who had travelled along the Alleghany Mountains on a tour of inspection.

Had matters been left to General Washington, Andrew Lewis would have been chosen commander in chief of the American Revolutionary forces. John Lewis, nephew of General Andrew Lewis and a son of Thomas Lewis, son mayor of Augusta County, lived in the Warm Springs and was captain of a company that went into the Warm Springs to Point Pleasant. He was severely wounded in that battle. He became an officer in the war of the Revolution, and at the close of the war he remained with his family in the Warm Springs, at the time occupied by him until his decease. 1788.

The Lieutenants Thomas Bullis discovered the peculiar properties of the Hot Springs, he took out a patent in common with Alvin Lewis and Thomas Lew for the Hot Springs resort of three hundred acres. He also agreed to by the parties just named to build a hotel for visitors and properly stock it with wine and other conventional luxuries the times. The Lewises changed their minds, thereupon the property was divided into three parts. Bullis put up a hotel on the site, the old homestead, about 1750. The Bullis building was the first to be erected and parts of it remained until the great fire of June 1901, when all was so effectively destroyed that the same was unnecessary rebuilding from very foundations.

Edward Everett Hale, of Boston, is one of the most beloved and honored of living men, of those who know him in person or of those who read his writings, heartily attest the truth of President Tucker's estimate of his character when he describes Dr Hale as a man "of rare and beloved, a comforter a quickener of souls, devoted to the social and political cause, whose citizenship is acknowledged alike by the republic of letters, of the Sea and of religion." One of the best things he has written is a verse of prayer. It attracts attention as the simple words of a child, and of a Christian might be said, and of a Christian might be said, to another sphere of wisdom and experience. In such a prayer the attentive reader will perceive the spirit of a man who has become too old to feel the life in the beautiful sense of Lord Mansfield. He cannot say he said to young men, "I am never said that nor to the children of God as a child which is not ever there in." For a child never old there in this present.

There is no truth of climate more plausibly pronounced than that of the South Sea Islands. A young person to whom it is a new thing to see the sea, may be asked why he does not go and witness the wonders of the South Sea Islands. He would answer that he has never seen the sea. He would be asked why he has never seen the sea. He would answer that he has never seen the sea.

WHEN ON OUR TRAVELS.

In passing through Washington

at night, as we did last week,

the great white Capitol building is seen from the train dimly, but shining in its misty outline in the darkness by reason of its size and whiteness. It is impressive to see it so and reflect that it is the very heart center of the greatest city that ever existed. The building in its massive simplicity is typical of American character, we have heard men say.

At Washington a band of Indians from the Territory got on board to start home, after seeing the Capitol. They were full blooded, apparently, and wild, with long hair. Several had the "scalp lock," carefully separated on top of the head at the back. An Indian wears a scalp lock as a sort of dare to unbend to come and take it, or to be his own. This Indian, who I honor too far has preyed near sterned the Indian.

In fixing his scalp lock the Indian took out a round patch of hair two inches in diameter, and plaits it in a short braid. The rest of his hair hangs in two long locks in front of either shoulder,

and the whole is kept heavy with grease. We would like to have talked with a real Indian, but the old buck opposed him, and an expression of face about as amiable

as a rattlesnake and was very loud, and his attempts at conversation was unsuccessful.

As the train approached Orange County, a young fellow across the aisle produced a bottle of corn

liquor and politely offered me a drink. I replied in polite refusal, "No, thank you, I am not thirsty." He said, "You expected, and the incident was closed.

In the seat behind was a woman

with a fifteen month old baby.

They had been traveling for two weeks from Switzerland, through

France and England, to Coffeville

W. Va. She and her husband had traveled with Barnum and Ballard's show for several years, and she had come to this country in advance of the show. The man is a musician and with the show

he has traveled all over the world.

The baby was pretty

bright and friendly, just learning

to talk in three or four languages.

He sounded like a European. We caught such words as "ah vah"

(au revoir), etc. The way she climbed on a car seat without getting a fall argued an excellent efficient in the flying trapeze or the lake wire.

As the train began to climb the eastern side of the Alleghenies

the snow was coming down and several inches had already in.

Lower down there was no snow.

On the Greenbrier Division we met Mr. Shaver, who was commissioner to Marlinton to remove the body of his son to Barbours

County. The boy was drowned while acting as a lumberman on Williams River. Mr. Shaver traveled nearly 500 miles by rail to reach a point in Pocahontas county, the most distant in the route from his home. The roads,

such as they are, were well impassable.

REPROBATE.

That certain persons have a peculiar influence over others is well known to all. Some of these persons have something they will exchange for nothing and you do not count the cost until afterwards when there is more time.

We think we are prepared to speak

because we have been skinned by every other man that ever came down the pike. But that there are others is proven by the number of gold bricks sold daily, and
